DAVID CHANNEL WILL BE SPEAKING THIS EVENING - Come and support our Associate Pastor as he bring the message from God’s Word tonight.

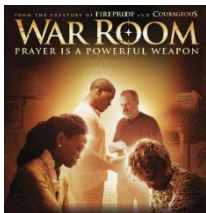

FATHER’S DAY – JUNE 21

Consider inviting others to be in service with you on Father’s Day.

WAR ROOM - Thank you to all that came out for the Movie

PRAYER IS A POWERFUL WEAPON

When we come to know Jesus as our Savior and Lord, our journey is only beginning. It can be easy to become wrapped up in our hectic lives and forget our first Love and the subtle Enemy who wants to keep us from Him.

Miss Clara in the movie asked, “What is your prayer life was like? Would you say that it was hot or cold?”

INDIAN TACOS - Thank you for all those that helped with Indian Tacos, came for lunch, delivered lunch to others, sharing about it and sharing flyers. 145 Tacos were served, $1,400 raised. Thanks to 10Box for donating tomatoes and lettuce, donations toward the meat and other supplies.

HIS BEST FOR YOU – BILLY GRAHAM DEVOTION

*... do the good things that result from being saved, obeying God ...
Philippians 2:12 (TLB)*

It takes no poll for those of us who have communicated with young people to know the devastation that permissive sexual activity generally causes. It becomes a cancer in the bodies and minds and characters of those who indulge, almost without exception. And there are other victims, such innocent bystanders as parents, grandparents, old family friends, teachers, and advisers, all much more concerned than you can understand. They want only the best for you. Anything less than a happy marital voyage gives them pain. The wisdom of their years says that premarital relations are always a mistake.

The Bible teaches that God created sex. He made “male and female.” Then it says, “God saw everything that He had made, and behold, it was very good.” This included the natural sexual attraction between the man and woman He had created. Therefore, sex is not sin! It is God's gift to the human race. It is for procreation; for enjoyment within the bonds of matrimony; for the fulfillment of married love.

Prayer: All the gifts You have given us are to be enjoyed, within the structure of Your commandments, heavenly Father. Keep me always conscious of Your teachings.

REPUBLICANS ACROSS US ARE REBRANDING JUNE TO BIBLICAL VALUES

Republican governors across the US are offering Biblically framed alternatives to June LGBTQ Pride Month celebrations, in turn celebrating God's design for families.

Red states are using the opportunity to promote a variety of messages, some are seeking to protect unborn life as a necessary step to support the nuclear family.

Oklahoma Gov. Kevin Stitt posted on social media, "God authors every life. As image bearers, there is inherent dignity and value in every human life. That's why Oklahoma is proud to declare June as Life Month."

Tennessee Gov. Bill Lee rebranded June as Nuclear Family Month, celebrating God's family structure of "one husband, one wife and any biological, adopted or fostered children."

Indiana Gov. Mike Braun echoed that effort with a Nuclear Family Month for his state too. "As we approach America's 250th anniversary, this proclamation recognizes the important role families play in shaping the future of our state and our country," he wrote.

Alabama Gov. Kay Ivey, the fathers of that structure are "the head of the household," and "homes led by a father and mother provide children with the structure and discipline necessary to succeed throughout life." So, to coincide with Father's Day, the Alabama governor is celebrating Strong Families Month.

While Family, Nuclear Family, and Strong Families Month define and celebrate God's family structure, proposals for Fidelity Month call Americans to not just celebrate these values, but to "rededicate the United States to the values of faith, family, and patriotism."

Utah, Arkansas, and at least four other GOP-controlled states support legislation to recognize June as Fidelity Month.

CHRISTIANITY IS SOARING IN IRAN WHILE ISLAM IS COLLAPSING

For decades, Iran's Shiite government leaders have been obsessed with death. Since the Iranian Revolution in 1978, children have been raised on stories of martyrdom. Young men were taught that dying for Allah was the highest honor they could attain. But now, as thousands of mosques close and the Islamic regime loses its grip on the hearts of its people, something extraordinary is happening.

Islam is dying in Iran, but the underground church is alive! Mohamad Faridi knows, as a young boy growing up in the early days of the Revolution in Iran, Mohamad's world was saturated with fear. The echoes of Quranic recitations filled his home. Images of martyrdom covered the walls of mosques. Mohamad's family was honored because their relatives had died as "Shahids" — martyrs for Islam. Streets in Tehran bear their family name in tribute to their sacrifice. From childhood, Mohamad was taught that the ultimate purpose of life was to die for Allah.

But underneath the devotion was terror. One night during his training with the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps (IRGC) Basij, Mohamad was forced into an Islamic grave alongside other young soldiers. The regime wanted them to experience death before ever stepping onto a battlefield. Deep in the dirt, unable to see his own hands in front of his face, Mohamad could feel panic rising in his chest with every breath. Dirt pressed against his face. The air was foul with the smell of dirt and decay. Islamic chants about death and martyrdom echoed above him as he lay trapped in darkness.

Muslims are taught to fear the grave. Many Islamic teachings describe torment after death — questioning, punishment, and torture awaiting the soul. Mohamad had wrestled with fear of the afterlife since he was a child, but every time he asked questions, he was silenced. He was told that questions lead to doubt, doubt leads to sin, and sin leads to hell.

The only guaranteed way to paradise, he was taught, was martyrdom. So, Mohamad longed to die for Allah. After completing his military service with the IRGC, however, an emptiness lingered.

At 21 years old, he began searching for meaning beyond rituals, fear, and striving. Then one conversation changed everything.

A close friend named Rasul told him about Jesus. Rasul explained that Jesus willingly suffered, bled, and died so humanity could have eternal life. Mohamad sat stunned. All his life, he had been told that peace with God could only come through punishing himself — beating his chest, cutting his skin, shedding his own blood in acts of religious devotion. Yet here was a message unlike anything he had ever heard:

Jesus had already suffered a cruel death for him! Mohamad later described the moment as if lightning struck his heart. For the first time, he encountered a God motivated not by fear, but by love. That day, Mohamad surrendered his life to Jesus! His whole world changed in an instant.

He immediately joined Iran's underground church, secretly meeting with believers, studying Scripture, and sharing the Gospel with fellow Iranians hungry for hope. But in Iran, converting from Islam is dangerous. As Mohamad became more vocal about his faith, the threats intensified. Eventually, it became clear he could no longer remain safely in his country. Through a series of miraculous events, he fled Iran and was granted asylum in the United States as a religious refugee. Today, Mohamad serves as president of Iranian Christians International, a ministry focused on evangelism, discipleship, Bible distribution, and strengthening the underground church in Iran and throughout the Muslim world.

According to Mohamad, the spiritual landscape inside Iran is shifting dramatically. "Islam is dying as you have never seen anything die this fast inside Iran," Faridi shared: "Religion is dead in Iran." He pointed to reports that 50,000 mosques out of 75,000 have shut down in recent years and described scenes during the 2026 protests where Iranians burned Islamic shrines and publicly rejected the regime's ideology.

But while many Iranians are turning away from Islam, they are not abandoning spirituality altogether. A spiritual hunger for truth remains — and they are discovering THE Way, THE Truth and THE Life in Jesus!

Despite arrests, surveillance, persecution, and executions, Iranians are flocking to house churches across Iran. Many former Muslims report encountering Jesus through dreams, visions, or miraculous encounters before ever meeting a Christian. Others secretly download Bibles, watch sermons online, or hear the Gospel through trusted friends. The very regime that tried to control a nation through fear has unintentionally created a generation desperate for truth and grace!

The nation that once trained young men to die is now witnessing thousands discover new life in Jesus! Perhaps that is the great irony unfolding beneath the surface of Iran today: while the ideology of death slowly collapses under its own weight, the underground church continues rising from the ashes — alive, growing, and impossible to bury!
