Wednesday Bible Study – The Court of Heaven – Robert Henderson

From this past Wednesday's lesson. That word accuser is the Greek word katagoros, means a complainant at law, or one who would stand against you in the assembly, a legal position. The Bible says basically, in the spirit realm, an accuser accusing you before God. This word katagoros is the word we get our English word categorized from. Our enemy is trying through accusations to define and categorize us, make us think less of ourselves than what God says we are. This stream of accusations that are coming against us, not only is it resisting the will of God in our life, it's also trying to fashion our identity, fashion the way other people would think about us. If you're going to get into your destiny, we must silence the accuser.

Revelation 12:10, "the accuser of our brethren, who accused them before our God day and night, has been cast down ". The thing that's going to cause complete and total breakthrough is not you defeating a demon on a battlefield. It is you silencing the argument of a demon against you. When you silence the voice of the accuser, the full breakthrough is now free to come.

Five things on how to present a case before the Lord:

- You have to present your case out of what's written in your book in heaven.
- Take the prophetic words that have been prophesied over you and use them to present a case in the courts of heaven.
- Use what Jesus did for you.
- Use the promises of God's Word.
- Bring a case before the Lord is present an Offering, Ties.

The holy spirit is the paraclete, the comforter, which means he is the legal aid to shows us how to maneuver in the Courts of Heaven.

A Blessing That Reaches Beyond You

The LORD bless you and keep you; the LORD make his face shine on you and be gracious to you; the LORD turn his face toward you and give you peace. Numbers 6:24–26 (NIV)

My grandmother was always taking time and praying while she worked, something more than everyday life. She had written the names of her children in her Bible, along with specific requests she brought before God on their behalf.

Her circumstances were far from perfect. She had responsibilities, pressures, and the ordinary demands that come with caring for a family. But she made time to pray. Again and again, she brought the people she loved before the Lord, asking Him to watch over them, guide them, and work in their lives.

She may not have known exactly what the future held for her children, or how far the influence of those prayers would reach. But she understood something important: the faithfulness of one generation can help shape the spiritual future of another.

Some of the most meaningful things we leave behind cannot be placed in a box or passed down through an inheritance. They are found in the prayers we prayed, the truth we taught, the encouragement we gave, and the example we lived. Those things can continue influencing lives long after we are gone.

Psalm 78:4-7 gives us a picture of this kind of spiritual responsibility. The psalmist declares that one generation must tell the next about the praiseworthy deeds of the Lord, His power, and the wonderful things He has done. Why? So the next generation will know Him, place their confidence in Him, and remain faithful to His ways.

A spiritual legacy does not happen by accident. Someone has to be willing to tell the stories, share the testimonies, pray the prayers, and demonstrate what it looks like to trust God through every season of life.

But there is another part of this responsibility that we sometimes overlook. Spiritual influence is not meant to flow in only one direction.

We naturally think about parents praying for children, grandparents encouraging grandchildren, and older believers mentoring those who are younger. Those things are essential. But what about the younger generation praying for the older generation? What about children speaking encouragement over their parents, or grandchildren reminding their grandparents that they are loved and needed?

In 2 Samuel 21:15-17, we find a surprising moment in the life of David. He was a mighty warrior who had faced giants and led armies, but during a battle, he grew exhausted and found himself in danger. A younger man came to his aid and struck down the enemy before David could be killed. His men recognized what had happened and told him he would no longer go into battle with them, because they did not want the light of Israel to be extinguished.

Even David, a man known for his strength and courage, eventually needed someone to come alongside him.

There is a lesson here for every generation. We all have seasons when we need someone else to strengthen us. Age does not remove that need, and youth does not disqualify someone from being a source of encouragement. God can use a young person's prayers to strengthen a parent, a grandchild's words to encourage a grandparent, and the faith of one generation to breathe fresh courage into another.

This is why the blessing God gave Moses and Aaron in Numbers 6:24-26 is such a beautiful prayer to speak over the people we love. It asks the Lord to bless and protect them, to show them His grace, and to give them peace. It is more than a kind sentiment. It is a way of placing the people we love before the God who loves them even more.

And God's heart for the generations does not stop with those who are already part of our families. Through the prophet Joel, God promised to pour out His Spirit on all people, with sons and daughters prophesying, young and old receiving from Him. His Spirit is not reserved for one age group. He is at work in every generation, and every generation has a part to play in what He is doing.

Wherever you find yourself today, there is an opportunity to make a difference. You may be a parent, grandparent, young adult, mentor, or someone who has simply walked with the Lord long enough to encourage another person. You do not have to wait for the perfect circumstances or a special occasion to begin.

It is never too late to start praying differently, speaking life, or becoming more intentional about the faith you pass along. The prayers you pray today may influence people you will never meet. The encouragement you offer may strengthen someone in a season when they are ready to give up. And the faithfulness you live out may become part of a story someone else tells years from now.

A spiritual legacy is not something one generation gives and another simply receives. It is something we build together, as we pray for one another, bless one another, and keep pointing each other toward the Lord.

Prayer: Heavenly Father, thank You for the generations who have prayed for me, encouraged me, and helped me know You. Thank You for the people whose faithfulness has shaped my life. Help me never take that spiritual inheritance for granted. Show me who needs my prayers, my encouragement, and my blessing today. Teach me to be intentional about the faith I pass along and help me recognize the ways You are working through every generation. May my life point others toward You and may the prayers I pray today have an impact far beyond what I can see. Let Your blessing, grace, and peace rest upon the generations coming behind me and those who have gone before me. In Jesus' name, Amen.
